The English Weekend Song (152)

There's a place in Germany
a place you all should know.
It's where you all learn English
that makes you all aglow.
You learn from Friday 5 o'clock
till Sunday at high noon.
And when you say „Bye-bye“ you know,
you will come back here soon.

Chorus:

That's English courses make you all aglow,
they're just called English Weekends,
and they make your English flow.
Meet teachers from around the world,
bring your daughter or your son,
forget your work and have a break learn English and have fun.

A group of approximately 15 people are seated in a circle of chairs in a rustic, stone-walled hall. They are all looking towards a man standing on the right side of the frame. The man is wearing a dark polo shirt, grey trousers, and glasses. The hall has a high ceiling with exposed wooden beams and stone walls. There are various decorations, including a string of blue and white Scottish Saltire flags, a large black and white photograph of a vintage car, and a large black and white photograph of a historic building. A small white lantern sits on a yellow cloth on the floor near the man standing. A large potted plant with pink flowers is also visible in the foreground on the right.
